SPHERISM

If Cubism broke down the object depicting it from different angulations, spherism merges all the characteristics of a given object and remodels it in a coherent vision, that is to say a form in full relief, in other words if in Cubism movement was external to the object depicted, in spherism movement is within the object itself. ("Immobile movement" from spherism writing) Sculpture of a figure eight structure has the naturalness of a stone that has endured prolonged erosion by water, the ball has the valency of the head and is reminiscent of an electron orbiting on the arm-breast ellipse.
