NELLYBECK

Weights, blissful and calming energy merged with ecstatic, vigorous and spirited vitality in a very feminine and compassionate way, turns this art into something to behold. "Why I paint? Because I love it! There is no hidden message, it isn't a mission. It's just pure, untainted joy to express. Time and time again, I longed for the brush and paint, the yearning to free my artistic side broke through my everyday life, especially when I wasn't visualizing my inner thoughts. All the inspirations, the thirst to let colours and forms melt into something new, into a work of art...it never quite let go of me."

Max Bozhko

An artist from St. Petersburg, Russia and a participant of various exhibitions in Russia (St. Petersburg and Moscow), in Puck, Poland and Basel, Switzerland.

"Always look for the energy!" is Max Bozhko's motto.

Like a loud and bright echo, light and colour collide in a vibrant contrast and create a harmonious reflection of fleeting moments, revealing the subtle world and hidden depths of the human soul.

This art makes you think, while aptly connecting all the key aspects of a creative mind - idea, spirituality and harmony. Intriguing and unconventional compositional solutions open the mind of the viewer to new fields and different points of view.
